

CHANGE

seems to be the word for 2009, first thrown into public awareness by the clever advertisers working for President Obama's campaign, promising a new, not really graspable but certainly very different future.

'Change always means letting go of something old and opening up for the new, the unknown. It presupposes a spirit of adventurousness and daring.'

20 young international artists created work on one theme: "Change". Combining multiple disciplines as drawing, photography, painting, sculpture, mixed media, installation, illustration, animation and textile-design the exhibition shows a wide range of international contemporary art.

Change is a collaboration project between Berlin based group "Nekojuice" and Edinburgh's "Perennial Art". Both groups aim at uniting artists from different cultural backgrounds and different artistic disciplines in common projects.
